Policy honesty is akin to dishonesty. Civic virtue must be grounded in individual honesty.

The man who believes is the man who achieves.

Good nature rounds off most of the sharp corners of life.

It does not take a man-made law to define a moral wrong.

The man who fears death has not yet begun learning how to live.

Some men are prone to attribute the results of their foolishness to fate.

Some advocates of temperance are very intemperate in their advocacy of it.

The more you put into life the greater will be your returns on the investment.

Some people rest to-day as a reward for the work they expect to do to-morrow.

The world is prone to look upon conscience fund contributions as philanthropy.

The crosses that we make for our own shoulders are not of the kind that will win crowns.

The ability to give coupled with giving is not enough. There must be a desire to give.

The man who makes his religion a thing of dreariness and woe would better be looking for another kind.

The man who is good merely in order to gain a reward hereafter, loses the larger share of the reward before it is due.

The man who says, "O, everything will come out all right," is not a true optimist; he is merely an obstructionist.

If the most of us were really honest we would admit that we would rather read about grand opera than to hear it.

The average woman's conception of a good husband is a man who can enjoy the home dinner on house-cleaning day.

The older we get the more impatient we become when we see a man who covers himself all over with badges when he goes to a convention.

The experienced housewife has a poor opinion of the knowledge of the man who first said that "a new broom sweeps clean." She knows better.

If politics is a "dirty business" it is not because a majority of the people are dishonest, but because a majority of the people are merely careless.

The church that fawns for the favor of the rich need not ask the question, "Why is it the laboring classes do not attend divine services more regularly?"

The true reformer never worries about results. The old colored man betrayed the true faith when he said: "If the Lord tell me to butt my head through a stone wall, I'll gwine to begin buttin'. Buttin' is my part of the work; gettin' through the wall is the Lord's part."

Democratic Outline.

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, a republican paper that is decidedly independent, and never gets anywhere near the position of party organ, locally or nationally, sees some chances of a democratic triumph in 1908. It refers to the fact says the Washington Post, that numerous democrats in congress have rallied to Mr. Roosevelt's support in his attempt to curb the power of the trusts and secure government railway rate regulation, and says that "does not mean that the party must go out of business." It is the opinion of the Bulletin, as of every intelligent citizen of the United States, that "the country needs the services of a strong and coherent opposition in congress," and our contemporary tells the democratic party that it should be able to form such an opposition as a result of the congressional elections of 1905.

All that is true. Although a disheartening record of six successive defeats in congressional canvasses stares the party in the face, it really ought to have strong hopes of large gains, and possibly of a majority in the next house. The election of 1874 effected a change scarcely less remarkable than that would be. In the middle of Grant's second term an immense republican majority in the house gave way to a democratic majority about as numerous. It is true that the republican party was in bad shape and that conditions generally favored democratic gains. But there are a good many indications that in 1906 discord and demoralization will not be strangers in the republican household of faith.

At that time there is really no such thing as the national democratic party, but they are probably as many men who call themselves democrats as there ever were. Given an organization and stimulated with hope, the disorganized mass of democrats could get together and put up a strong fight. The democratic abdication after its great victory of 1892 has been and still is a misfortune to the country. The impotency which has rendered the so-called opposition powerless for good is responsible for much harm. Had the democrats been real menace to republican ascendancy, there would have been fewer abuses of power and less neglect of duty. The Bulletin concludes its brief discussion with the remark that "the present condition of national politics is distinctly abnormal, and unless all the lessons of American history are at fault, it will not continue permanently. Sweeping as the last democratic defeat was and following as it did on two other disastrous reverses, there is no reason why members of the party should regard its condition as hopeless." The most suggestive fact in this connection is that there were 3,063,000 voting citizens who did not show up at the polls last November. That element may decide the next campaign.

Don't Borrow Trouble

It is a bad habit to borrow anything, but the worst thing you can possibly borrow, is trouble. When sick, sore, heavy, weary and worn-out by the pains and poisons of dyspepsia, biliousness, Bright's disease, and similar internal disorders, don't sit down and brood over your symptoms, but fly for relief to Electric Bitters. Here you will find sure and permanent forgetfulness of all your troubles, and your body will not be burdened by a load of debt disease. At T. E. Paull's drug store. Price 50c. Guaranteed.

Princess Alice.

Miss Alice Roosevelt, it is said, has surrendered her heart and promised her hand, and now wears upon her left third finger the jeweled token of her marriage engagement. This successful wooer is the eloquent 'Boy Orator of the Wabash,' Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, and the formal announcement of the betrothal will be made at Easter. The news had just come from Washington whence it is also learned that President Roosevelt is more than pleased, and has given the happy pair his paternal benediction. There has been noticed for some months past, a most agreeable change in the deportment of the fair Princess Alice. She has grown more womanly, more dignified, and altogether more lovable. She has put away her frivolity, while still retaining much of her charm of unconventionality, and the reason is now clear. She is in love. Senator Beveridge is a widower of 42. His first wife was Miss Katherine Langsdale, of Greencastle, Indiana, who died in 1900. The Senator is self made. He was a plow boy at 12, a railroad laborer at 14, a logger and teamster at 15. Then he attended high school at Sullivan Ill., later he read law in the office of Joe McDonald, and after being admitted to the bar became associated with the law firm of McDonald & Butler, with which he remained until beginning practice for himself. As a Republican campaign speaker he has for years been preeminent.

Explains How Facts Recur.

As the result of many experiments, Dr. Swoboda, an Austrian savant, has formulated a new theory, the way in which recollection of bygone events will flash into the brain without apparent cause.

Dr. Swoboda's suggestion is that such souvenirs have a tendency of their own to recur at the end of stated periods. One such period is twenty-three hours. Thus, twenty-three hours after the brain has been impressed with the idea of a melody, a picture, or an event, it returns involuntarily. Longer periods may elapse before the return of the memorized fact, but Dr. Swoboda finds that they are multiples of twenty-three—such as forty-six, sixty-nine, ninety-two, and so on.

These figures refer only to the brains of men. Women's brains move more quickly, and recollection comes back in periods of eighteen hours and multiples thereof. Dr. Swoboda explains this curious recurrence of memory by the oscillation which the organism undergoes—an oscillation which is quite rhythmic and regular, and varies in sexes. Another Viennese doctor, pursuing the same idea, has already noted the return of periods in pathological symptoms, such as hysteria and headache.

In regard to dreams, Dr. Swoboda says that if attention is directed it will be noted that certain dreams are repeated at the end of twenty-three or forty-six days with men or twenty-eight days with women.

He thinks that a knowledge of these facts should enable humanity to increase immensely its capacity for memory. These recurrent waves, if carefully studied, would greatly assist students preparing for examination, who depend on their memory serving them accurately at a given date.

ASTOUNDING REVELATIONS.

Nothing of late years has so stirred the public mind as the police court developments of the past few days.

Boot-leggers and blind-tiger men alike swear that the county attorney of Barren county and the city attorney of Glasgow have formed a partnership with them, guaranteeing them immunity from punishment in return for one-half their legal profits. In other words, the two county and city officials whose duty it is to prosecute this class of offenders, have, if these charges are true deliberately connived at crime, and have been paid their pro rata of the money made by violating laws they were sworn to enforce.

In the face of these astounding revelations, there is but one course to pursue. Every guilty man should be punished and every official of the law who has prostituted his position to base and ignoble ends should be forced to resign at once. There can be no half-way grounds, or half-hearted measures, in setting the seal of condemnation upon crimes such as this.

Reports are conflicting as to the whereabouts of Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron. One dispatch says it was sighted at Turon Bay Sunday. Another says it was seen off Hong Kong and others still seem to indicate that it is doubtful if the fleet has left Kamranh Bay. There is no confirmation of any of the rumors of engagements at Nantura Islands or elsewhere. The Japanese are reported to have captured several colliers off the coast of Cochin China. At St Petersburg it is believed by the officials that Japan's proclamation of defense zones at the Pescadores was merely intended as a blind. Reports from the land campaign in Manchuria are confined to skirmishing operations several days old.

Castro Will be Spanked.

There are indications that, as soon as president Roosevelt returns from his bear hunt, president Castro, of Venezuela, will be soundly spanked.

The controversy with Venezuela arises out of the attitude assumed by that country toward the New York and Bermudaz Asphalt Company, a concern financed by United States citizens. In return for the privilege for working an asphalt lake in the interior of the South American Republic, the company agreed to irrigate certain parts of the territory contiguous to its holdings. After more than ten years had elapsed Castro claims to have discovered that the company was not carrying out its irrigation agreement. The company in the mean time had purchased outright the valuable asphalt lakes, and held them as real property. Castro ordered the sequestration of the holdings, and the Americans were deprived of the profits therefrom.

The matter is now in the Venezuelan courts, but they are Castro's tools, and defer action at his bidding, besides being prejudiced to the American interests: Minister Bowen, of the United States, asked President Castro to refer the matter to arbitration. This he has refused to do.

This is an excellent opportunity to flourish the big stick, and President Roosevelt is not likely to allow the occasion to pass unimproved.—Glasgow Times.
